Page 4 – Reading Comprehension

One afternoon, Elliana and Ari were in art class making colorful pictures. Earlier that morning, Mom reminded them that school is a place to use kind words, listen to teachers, and make good choices. While everyone was painting, Elliana thought it would be funny if Ari said the word "poop" out loud. She whispered for him to say it even after the teacher calmly asked everyone to use respectful classroom words and stay focused. Ari laughed and said it anyway. Soon both twins were giggling instead of listening. Their teacher stopped the class and reminded them that following directions is more important than making friends laugh. Elliana realized that wanting something did not make it the right choice. Mom's rules and the teacher's instructions were there to help everyone learn. The twins apologized, listened carefully for the rest of class, and finished beautiful art projects. On the way home, Mom explained that life is full of little tests. Sometimes the test is whether we listen even when something silly seems funny. Doing the right thing often means stopping, thinking, and choosing what is right instead of what we want in the moment. Elliana and Ari decided they wanted to pass those tests next time.

1. Who reminded Elliana and Ari to use kind words before school?
2. What did Elliana encourage Ari to do?
3. What did the teacher ask the class to do?
4. What lesson did Mom teach about life's tests?
5. What did the twins do after realizing their mistake?
